ST GEORGE, Utah - Locally-based Town & Country Bank has appointed local businesswomen Stefanie Bevans and Joné Koford to its Board of Directors. In making the announcement, the bank's Chairman of the Board Kurt Johnson said, "We are extremely fortunate to have Stefanie and Joné as Directors. Both have highly successful business experience, and the bank will benefit greatly from their unique perspectives and energetic management styles."

Ms. Bevans is the co-owner and CEO of Steamroller Copies, Inc. and Design To Print, Inc. She is responsible for domestic and international business relations throughout the U.S., Canada, Asia and Europe at Design to Print, a high-end graphics and pre-press service company that has been recognized for its impressive growth. Ms. Bevans provides leadership for an 80+ person workforce and oversees all business development, marketing, productions, human relations and administrative affairs.

In the community, Ms. Bevans currently serves as a board member for the Governor's Office of Economic Development, an active member of the Southern Utah Sunshiners, and a current board member and Past Chair for the Art Around the Corner Foundation. She served as past board member of the St. George City Art Museum, Board of Trustees for Habitat for Humanity of Southwest Utah, as well as involvement and current membership with the St. George Chamber of Commerce, Dixie Regional Medical Center Foundation, Dixie State College Athletics, Washington County Children's Foundation, and Southern Utah Home Builders Association.

Joné Koford

Having attended the University of Utah, Ms. Bevans later completed her BSN degree (summa cum laude) at Northern Arizona University. She originally pursued a career in nursing, specializing in Neonatal Intensive Care (NICU).

Ms. Koford is currently the Operations Officer, Senior Services, for Intermountain Healthcare's Southwest Region. She has been with Intermountain since May 2015. Prior to that date, Ms. Koford was the CEO and principal owner in the consulting firm, Ennovative Performance Group, LLC.

A healthcare executive for more than three decades, Ms. Koford's career has included roles as a hospital CEO, and regional vice president and division president for publicly-traded companies such as HCA, HealthTrust and LifePoint Hospitals—all based in Nashville, TN. Prior to her short-lived retirement in 2013, she was the President of Strategic Growth and Development for LifePoint where she had responsibility for company-wide growth initiatives and hospital acquisitions. Ms. Koford was instrumental in the formation of DukeLifePoint Healthcare, a joint venture between Duke University Health System and LifePoint Hospitals. At the time of formation, it was the first joint venture between a for-profit healthcare system and a major academic medical center for the purpose of acquiring and operating community based hospitals.

Ms. Koford holds a master's degree in healthcare administration from the University of Colorado and an honorary doctorate in Humanities from Weber State University in Ogden, Utah. She is the current Chair for Weber State's National Advisory Council, and serves on various other committees with both Weber State and the University of Utah.

Town & Country Bank was established in 2008, and maintains one retail office in St. George and a loan production office in Sandy, Utah. Earlier this year, Town & Country won the "Best of State Statue" award in recognition as the top business in Utah. The bank has recently won a string of other regional and national awards for excellence and innovation.
