Town & Country Bank and its Leader Portrayed in Industry Magazine

ST.GEORGE, UT—Locally-based Town & Country Bank continues to draw widespread respect for its unique banking model and strong profitability. The July 2015 issue of Independent Banker magazine featured the bank’s CEO Bruce Jensen as its “Indie Banker of the Month”, and included two illustrated stories about Town & Country’s good fortunes.

The first article, “White-Glove Service”, focused on the bank’s innovative delivery of customer service. Jensen wrote the second story, “Our Way Through”, which chronicles Town & Country’s navigation through difficult economic times and into national prominence for its exceptional return on assets and return on equity.

The bank expects to post record net income for its second quarter of the year, and will formally announce earnings later this month. Jensen and the bank were recipients of two high profile awards earlier this year, and Town & Country has grown in assets by more than 10% since the beginning of the year.
